5. In 1950, a partisan who had been wounded and captured lay in a hospital in Cesis under a constant security guard who waited for him to recover sufficiently to be interrogated. In a prison in Cesis in 1950, the screams of a captured partisan who was being tortured could be heard through several walls. On several occasions during 1951 and 1952, anti-Communist pamphlets were found on the streets in Rauna (N 57-21, E 25-36). There were some betrayals of the partisans in the Cesis area, and partisan activity ceased there by the end of 1952; according to local rumors, the partisans then moved to the larger forests in Lithuania and Poland, where they were rumored to be well armed and to be engaged in attacking Soviet soldiers and blowing up bridges and trains.
